Which version of Windows doesn't have the Windows logo on it's boot screen?

5.7K answered

Windows XP	4%
Windows Vista	85%
Windows 7	3%
Windows 8	9%

Explanation

Windows XP's boot screen has the Windows XP logo with blue moving lines underneath. Windows Vista's boot screen just has a black screen with green moving lines at the bottom. Windows 7's boot screen has 4 colorful glowing balls orbiting and then coming together to form the Windows 7 logo which then pulsates. Windows 8's boot screen has the Windows 8 logo with spinning dots underneath. Note that Windows Vista also has a glowing orb after the boot screen, before the Welcome screen.

If you are wondering why I haven't posted anything or replied to any comments for the last 5 days, it's because the power and internet have been out from 2023-02-13 10:00 until 2023-02-19 16:00 (UTC+13:00), because the river burst its banks and flooded the substations (and loads of houses, roads and farmland). Luckily our house didn't get flooded, but loads did, only a few km away. I have recorded some footage of the devastation left behind after the flood, which I will probably upload to @WoOS_Historic_Vlogs within the next week or two when I get round to editing it (I've got loads to catch up on now I've got power and internet for the first time in 5 days).
